Christmas Messages

New! Drink Your Message!

Click here to write your own message

Within this bottle is the Christmas Spirit, it has sprung forth on to you. May the spirit of Christmas fill your heart, and may you share it with all those around you.

Wishing you a Merry Christmas and Happy New Year.

May the spirit of Christmas pour forth from this bottle, fill you with the joy and happiness and may you share it with all around you.

Wishing you Merry Christmas
and Happy New Year.

This precious shining bottle
Traveled 'cross the seas of time
To find a friend much greater than
This tiny little rhyme.

It landed on your doorstep,
It's mission's not completed, though.
It's job's not at an end.
It wants to come inside and share
The message that I send:

When you open up this bottle
And read these words from me
Press your ear so gently to the top and listen for the magic.

For the magic it speaks of holiday Cheer
When you hear the sleigh bells jingling
And you dream of silver bells,
the scent of the Christmas tree,
the warm of the roaring fire.

If you need me, you can call me,

A message in a bottle is the one gift they will display proudly at their home or office. No two are ever quite the same. Every time you pick it up the interior changes, the scene, the emotions and the message are remembered.

Message in a bottle make great wedding and party invitations and favors, they also work extremely well as promotional and corporate event announcement and invites.

Remember our MIBs pricing includes free shipping(US mail only)
and original gift wrapping.

Getting the Date with a Message in a Bottle

It's always so hard, isn't it?

Getting up the courage to ask someone out on a date.

Sure you've made eye contact with them, even chatted with them, but ask them out for a date? Just the thought makes you break into a sweat and want to run, hide in a closet somewhere.

Well, you can relax! Because asking someone for a date just got a lot easier. All you have to do is ask the person you're interested for a date using a Message in A Bottle—and let it take any possible heat.

Or, if you've gotten past the first date hurdle and want another and another and another . . . Well then, use a Message in a Bottle to turn up the heat! Who knows where it all might lead. (Hopefully, to the two of you moving onto to even warmer and warmer things. Like a nice, cool bottle of wine—and a nicer, warm bottle of oil. Ooo-la-lal)

Because, really, who could resist getting asked out for a date when you've shown such a fabulous flair for the unique by doing it with a Message in a Bottle? Doesn't that just automatically tell the person you're asking out that they can expect wonderful, clever things from you? I should think so. And more important, so will they.

And oh, the things you can say! Without ever opening your mouth! The possibilities are as endless as the ocean tides. Truly. Using one of our Message in a Bottle messages to ask out your potential significant other (or potential just-for-this-weekend significant other) makes it so easy and painless that you'll want to smack yourself for not thinking of it sooner. Please don't hit yourself, though. You don't want an ugly bruise marring your looks when you go out on your date.

You can also compose your own special Message in a Bottle date request. What better way could there be to show your want-to-go-out-with-so badly someone what a great imagination you have—or how much you like them?

So, whip up a clever little poem that shows your sense of humor to ask someone out for a date. Or, better, draft an invitation for the romantic night of your, um, I mean, their dreams. You can do it. You watch Oprah, so I know you can.

But if you don't think so, you can always borrow from the great poets like Shakespeare to ask someone out for a date in your Message in a Bottle—or you can ask one of your romantic friends who has a creative way with words to help you (just be sure to give credit where credit is due!). Romantic poems are a fabulous way to entice someone to go on a date with you. They're just soooo, well, romantic! And since only a few hard-hearted people who don't know a good thing when they see it can resist a true romantic, you can be pretty darn sure the person you ask out for a date will say yes.

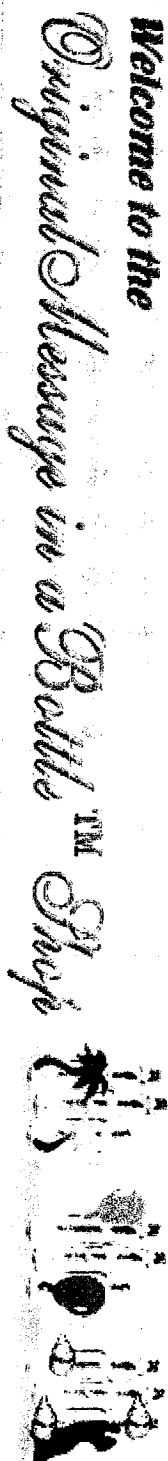

And it's all so easy! Who knew? No more stammering. No more sleepless nights, tossing and turning as you try to get up your nerve to ask someone out. No more calling your best friends at one in the morning, dripping from a cold sweat, trying to find the courage and the right words to ask that special someone out on a date.

No, smart thing that you are, you have gone beyond all that. To, yes, become All That in the asking-a-person-for-a-date arena. Because you have discovered the infinite power and wisdom of using a Message in a Bottle to ask someone for a date! Who knows, Oprah might soon be calling you, clever thing, to ask for dating advice!

signature that's all your own. Luckily, thanks to a Message in a Bottle that's never been easier. Now, you may be thinking that a Message in a Bottle and your need for a business gift don't entirely go together.

And you would be wrong. But that's okay. Because you just haven't had a chance to discover how using a Message in a Bottle is a great way to, say, package a thank you note with your business contact information on it, for example, as a leave behind after that all-important business presentation.

Or how you can use a Message in a Bottle to send that vital client or prospective customer an invitation to a special lunch or dinner just for them. Really, when you think of the things that usually cross a client's desk like dull sales letters, direct mail packages and CDs, you'll realize that the uniqueness of using a Message in a Bottle to deliver a business gift or invitation will be a refreshing change for any businessman or businesswoman.

After all, there are most likely an awful lot of people and businesses trying to get your clients' or prospective customers' attention—and business. They use the standard same ol' same ol' direct mail cards, CDs, etc. Tres impersonal, don't you think?

So imagine how impressed your clients and prospective customers will be when their business gift or even brief sales letters come to them in a beautiful, unique Message in a Bottle. A business gift like this will definitely "cut across the clutter, as it's called in the advertising and marketing industries. This simply means get your clients' and prospective customers' attention—and keep it.

Which is so crucial in today's highly competitive business world. A Message in a Bottle has the potential to become for your business what the swoosh is to Nike or the cow is to Chik Fillet. A unique personal trademark that sets you apart from everybody else.

Not only that, but using a Message in a Bottle for your business gift giving says you care, and yes, dare, to be different. But not in some smarmy, slick way, but in a considerate, caring way.

Because there's just something so thoughtful and intimate about a using a Message in a Bottle for your business gifts that's certain to grab your clients' and/or prospective customers attention. Plus, giving Message in a Bottle business gifts makes a statement about the personal customer service you offer your clients and customers. And that's a statement that will be remembered in an appreciative way.

And using a Message in a Bottle as a business gift also doesn't just tell a client or customer that you're creative—it shows them. And believe me, people in advertising and marketing offices all over the world spend their whole careers sweating bullets and gulping down blood pressure pills daily in their efforts to come up with items that do what a Message in a Bottle business gift does so well and so simply—delivers business gifts and materials in creative, unique packages that sell not only the product, but the person or people behind the product as well.

So don't waste another minute stressing over just the right business gift or gifts for your special clients and/or prospective customers. Order a boatload of Messages in a Bottle for your business gifts now! Because you're sure to find many more ways to enhance your business with a Message in a Bottle than just the ones I've mentioned.

And you can be sure that your clients and prospective customers will thank you for not making them endure having to open yet another package with someone's bright idea for a cute and clever, but useless and, worse, tasteless business gift. And those thank yous for your Message in a Bottle business gift will likely come, not in so many words, but in so many orders for your products and services that you may have to hire on some additional mates to take care of them all!

Hugs and Kisses
on the Beach MIB

Design Your Own
MIB

A Message in a Bottle is the one gift they will display proudly at their home or office. No two are ever quite the same. Every time you pick it up the interior changes, the scene, the emotions and the message are remembered.

Message in a Bottle make great wedding and party invitations and favors, they also work extremely well as promotional and corporate event announcement and invites.

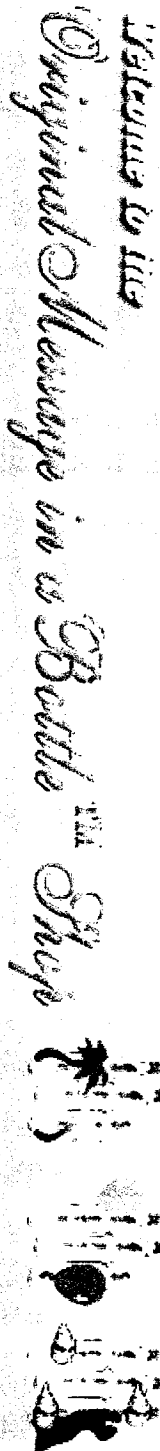

Remember our MIBs pricing includes free shipping(US mail only)
and original gift wrapping.

Love Message #1

A butterfly flutters on by,
its wings whispers your name,
A rose basks in the morning sun,
the scent reminds me of you.
A gentle breeze caresses my face your touch, gentle.

So many times, the words within my heart are unlocked by my soul, and they begin to come out –

Love, Passion, Beauty,
Grace

How I yearn to say these words,
But don't know how,
I just have...

Inspiration #1

Whenever you are feeling down,
Please close your eyes and feel
The hug within this bottle
That you have just unsealed.

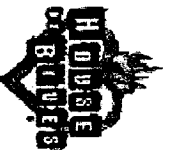

The magic in this piece of glass
Will never dissipate.
If countless times you open it,
It's charm won't deviate.

So place it in the window
Or near your favorite chair,
And use this never-ending hug
Whenever life's not fair.

Let the unseen magic
Place you in my warm embrace.
The tears that shine within your eyes,

Comments about the MIBs

Hello. My name is Jeffrey Kreider, and I ordered a Message in a Bottle from you for my wife for Valentines Day. I want to thank you for the speedy order placement and delivery. I want to try to make this a special Valentines Day since I am not going to be there. It has been almost a year since I have been home. I have missed her birthday, our wedding anniversary, Christmas and New Years. Hopefully I will be home before her Birthday again in June. Thank you for your support of the troops that are serving overseas in Operation Iraqi Freedom. Even though the war is over, we still have a job that we have to do, and soldiers are still getting killed every day. It is people like yourselves that make life a little easier while we are over here and reminds us why we are here. Thank you again and God bless

Just got back to work today! (Vacation was GREAT!) Got mine yesterday when I cleaned out the mailbox. What a nice presentation!
The talk of the place is the INVITATIONS!!!! So far, everyone LOVES them! At least one of the guys whose daughter is getting married in March is taking the info - he's not sure if she's made a commitment yet or not...

Thank you again!

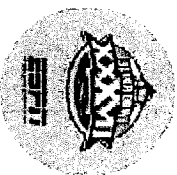

Take care and hope to have reason to work with you again!!!

Marcia

thanks for the MIB it was in my po box yesterday. thanks for the speedy

thanks tim

Thank you so much!!! Your customer service has been wonderful!!!

Can't wait to see my MIB!!!

Donna

Thank you so much.....we can't wait to get started on them and all of the information you e-mailed was wonderful.....you guys are very helpful and I'm sure our friends will be using your services in the near future.....the ones we have told are very excited about the idea.

Once again...thank you, - Denese

Hello Keith,

I received the Bottles and I am very pleased! They look great!

Thank You again for all your assistance!

Best Regards,

Thank you so very much, I received the invitations on Friday. They look absolutely wonderful and everyone has called to comment on them. I have gladly passed along your name and number to all who have asked.

Thanks again and I hope to use your services again soon in the future.

Lorrie - Marriott

Thank you, you guys are great. I am an infantry soldier in the U.S Army currently in Iraq and I haven't been able to tell my soon to be wife that I love her and I am sure she will like the bottle. I am recommending you guys to the rest of my soldier friends. Thanks

The bottles arrived when you said they would and they are terrific! They are absolutely perfect, and I wanted to thank you.

Just wanted to say the invites were a huge hit. Thanks for all your efforts. Did notice one flaw though. No biggie, but wanted you to know. At the bottom where it says dress for a tropical evening outdoors, the "s" is missing off of outdoors. I don't think anyone noticed, I just thought you should be aware.
Thanks again though. They were great!!

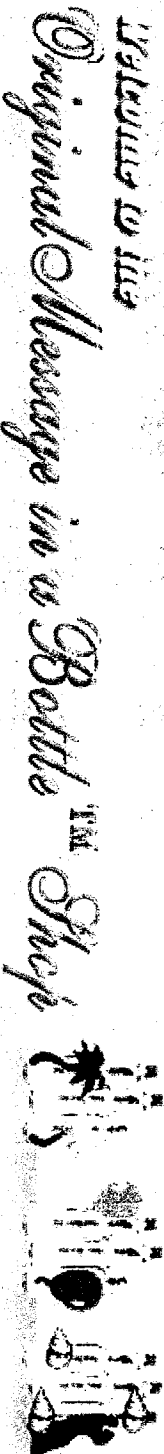

R. Adelman

Thank you very much! We've enjoyed doing business with you and have appreciated all your hard work and patience with us. Once again, just because of your wonderful customer service with us through-out this ordering process, we will definitely and "strongly" recommend your company and website to others.

A special message from our Founder

" I am the creator of the Original MIBs, and all the other products you will find at dreamweaverstudios.com. People often ask me "What inspires you?". My answer is simple, "First you sit and watch the sunset, or the sunrise if your up earlier enough, gaze at the stars, stare at the Moon, watch children play at the park, listen to a child laugh, look deep inside, let your imagination guide you, "Find a need and Fill it." By purchasing one of our products, especially a MIB you most definitely will be brightening someone's day, and that's my goal to provide you the consumer with something to add a little shine to the world each and everyday."

Message in a Bottle Article Father's Day

Father's Day Message in a Bottle

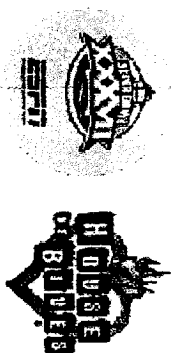

It's a fact of life: fathers are notoriously difficult to buy for, and Father's Day is notoriously difficult to handle. It's filled with ties and paperweights, increasingly generic store-bought cards that never express exactly what you want to say. And even if the gifts themselves aren't horrible – lots of fathers absolutely adore ties and office products and look forward to their yearly arrival – they still lack that certain something, that je ne sais quoi that makes a Father's Day gift pop. So let's do something about that, shall we? There's actually a pretty easy solution – it's called Message in a Bottle.

Now, I know what you're thinking. Your dad doesn't like all that sappy stuff. Isn't Message in a Bottle a pretty sentimental little gift? Au contraire, dear son or daughter. Message in a Bottle can be used for plenty of purposes, and they aren't all tear jerking. And anyway, you'd be surprised how many dads warm up to a good old sappy gift on Father's Day; if it truly comes from your heart, he'll love it no matter what.

That's why Message in a Bottle makes a great replacement for the usual store-bought Father's Day card. Customize a special, heartfelt message for Dad (maybe try your hand at a little poetry!) and watch him soften like melting ice cream. Not only is a Message in a Bottle Father's Day card very much from the heart (by virtue of being written by you), it's also an incredibly unique and creative way to send Dad your best wishes for the day. What father wouldn't want to open a gorgeous bottle to find a special message straight from their son or daughter.

Maybe you'd rather skip the sentimental stuff and go straight to a great Father's Day gift instead. You're in luck. Message in a Bottle is the perfect complement to any Father's Day gift! Does Dad have a special hobby like golf or fishing? Go out and buy a brand new bait box or golf bag for Father's Day. Maybe even have his name engraved on the surface. Then personalize a Message in a Bottle with directions to a breathtaking new golf course or spectacular fishing area; make sure to include a time to be there – Dad won't want to miss out on this. Slip the Message in a Bottle into the gift (slightly visible, of course), slap on a gaudy bow and leave the package on Dad's front porch or in the loving hands of Mom. He'll definitely adore the Father's Day gift that much more because of the Message in a Bottle treasure. And don't worry if you don't know how to golf or fish – this is the perfect opportunity for Dad to teach you!

Message in a Bottle can even spice up the traditional Father's Day desk gift! Give Dad a specially customized Message in a Bottle, and let him know that it can be used as a paperweight or as a complement to the traditional, framed family pictures. This way, every time Dad needs a quick pick-me-up at his desk, he can open up the unique Father's Day gift and read your personalized message. Even the toughest dads have a soft spot in their hearts for the children; this Father's Day, give your Dad the opportunity to show his.

Message in a Bottle Article Anniversary

Message in a Bottle and Anniversaries

Your anniversary. Simultaneously the most wonderful and troublesome day of the year. Here you've got this great spouse whom you love more than anything and one whole day made specially to celebrate that love, and yet the mere idea of it sends you into a panic. What will we do, where will we go? What kind of gift should I buy, and what if my spouse doesn't like? How can I make this anniversary super special without resorting to dinner and a movie again?

Relax, take a deep breath. Message in a Bottle's got you covered. These precious little bottles are so in tune with a special anniversary, you almost won't believe it. Looking for a great gift idea? Give your spouse several Messages in a Bottle, each with a coupon for a special task. Take a break from your chronically busy lifestyle by including a bottled coupon for a home cooked meal (with a special "dessert"). Or help your spouse unwind after a long day at work with a bottled coupon for a back or foot massage. These coupons can be for anything your spouse loves, so get creative! Make them redeemable for life, and your spouse will be bound to play you over with tons of anniversary kisses.

Want to get more emotional on your anniversary? No problem! Tuck a Message in a Bottle with a special poem into a bouquet of roses — but make sure you write the poem yourself.

Don't try too hard to make your anniversary poem an award-winning masterpiece; just write whatever comes directly from your soul. Sure, it might not be from the pages of Walt Whitman, but it'll certainly be from the heart. And besides, awkward prose when coming from the one you love can be incredibly endearing!

If you just aren't the poetic type, try writing down your memories instead! Give your spouse a Message in a Bottle for every year you've been together, each one containing your favorite memory from that year. Been together for over 30 years and don't want your spouse buried beneath a pile? Include two or three years in every bottle. And if you're newlyweds, base each bottle on a wonderful memory from your first year together. What better way to celebrate your anniversary than to spend time remembering all the great memories you've created?

And here's one that will definitely hit an emotional anniversary chord: give your spouse a Message in a Bottle with your wedding vows printed inside. Even if you didn't write your own vows, this is a wonderful way to remember your wedding day and informally renew those special promises that brought you two together. But you might want to tuck a handkerchief in there, too. There's nothing like wedding vows to get those anniversary tears flowing.

Message in a Bottle Article Cast Away Your Fear

Use a Message in a Bottle to Cast Away Your Fear

Believe it or not, everybody has a fear of some kind. Most of us have many of them.

Now I'm not talking about fear of spiders or snakes or, well, you get the idea. I'm talking about the kind of fear that holds you back from living life to the fullest or taking chances that could enrich your life. And a Message in a Bottle can help you toss take that fear or fears and toss them into, if not a real sea, a virtual one.

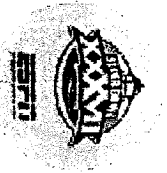

And no, it's not some hokey, New Age idea that I'm talking about here. Rituals like this have been around—and worked!—for thousands and thousands of years. Why, back in medieval times, people used Halloween as a time to banish the evil spirits and things they were frightened of from their homes. They'd sweep and clean all day to prepare for All Saints day when things were to become holy again. This was the way they dealt with their fear of things they didn't understand or have any control over.

Pity they didn't have a Message in a Bottle to bottle their fear and toss it away. They could have saved themselves a lot of work! And I'm all for that, aren't you?

But seriously, they could have taken that time they spent doing all that cleaning and written a letter addressing their fear and the reasons it was time for it to go away. This would have helped them get to the real source of their fear. Writing has been found to be highly therapeutic when dealing with fear of any kind. It's always good to get your fear (or fears) out into the open so that you can deal with it. Add that to being able to actually place a letter or note in a bottle where it's contained, perhaps even tossed into the ocean or a lake, and you have closure about the issue of your fear.

This is so important. Instead of bottling up your fear inside you, bottle it in a Message in a Bottle! Rituals and ceremonies also play an important therapeutic role in our lives. The act of writing out your fear, putting it in a Message in a Bottle, and then either tossing it into the ocean or the lake (which you really shouldn't do, dears, think of the fish) or just symbolically casting your fear away in a manner that suits you can be life-changing.

Imagine put the cork into a Message in a Bottle containing your fear of, say, failure. You'd be free to act on all those things you've wanted to do, but have been afraid of risking. Like asking that someone you like a lot out on a date. Or starting on that novel you've always want to write. Or changing jobs because you hate the one you have, but at least you know what's expected of you. Or training for a marathon. Or ...

See, there may be a lot of things that fear of failure is keeping you from doing. By using a Message in a Bottle to rid yourself of it, you've opened the door to a whole new world of opportunities. And you can use this technique for ridding yourself of all kinds of fear, over and over again, with positive results that will make it possible for you to live life more fully and happily.

So get busy ordering your Message in Bottle, or better, if you're like some people who shall remain nameless, here, you should order several. That way, whenever some sneaky, life-draining fear comes creeping into your life, you'll be ready.

Message in a Bottle Article Business Gift Signature

Create a Business Gift Signature With a Message in a Bottle

We live in the age of brands, so it's never been more important to create a business gift signature that's all your own. Luckily, thanks to a Message in a Bottle that's never been easier.

Now, you may be thinking that a Message in a Bottle and your need for a business gift don't entirely go together.

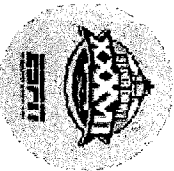

And you would be wrong. But that's okay. Because you just haven't had a chance to discover how using a Message in a Bottle is a great way to, say, package a thank you note with your business contact information on it, for example, as a leave behind after that all-important business presentation.

Or how you can use a Message in a Bottle to send that vital client or prospective customer an invitation to a special lunch or dinner just for them. Really, when you think of the things that usually cross a client's desk like dull sales letters, direct mail packages and CDs, you'll realize that the uniqueness of using a Message in a Bottle to deliver a business gift or invitation will be a refreshing change for any businessman or businesswoman.

After all, there are most likely an awful lot of people and businesses trying to get your clients' or prospective customers' attention—and business. They use the standard same ol' same ol' direct mail cards, CDs, etc. Tres impersonal, don't you think?

So imagine how impressed your clients and prospective customers will be when their business gift or even brief sales letters come to them in a beautiful, unique Message in a Bottle. A business gift like this will definitely "cut across the clutter, as it's called in the advertising and marketing industries. This simply means get your clients' and prospective customers' attention—and keep it.

Which is so crucial in today's highly competitive business world. A Message in a Bottle has the potential to become for your business what the swoosh is to Nike or the cow is to Chik Fillet. A unique personal trademark that sets you apart from everybody else.

Not only that, but using a Message in a Bottle for your business gift giving says you care, and yes, dare, to be different. But not in some smarmy, slick way, but in a considerate, caring way.

Because there's just something so thoughtful and intimate about a using a Message in a Bottle for your business gifts that's certain to grab your clients' and/or prospective customers attention. Plus, giving Message in a Bottle business gifts makes a statement about the personal customer service you offer your clients and customers. And that's a statement that will be remembered in an appreciative way.

And using a Message in a Bottle as a business gift also doesn't just tell a client or customer that you're creative—it shows them. And believe me, people in advertising and marketing offices all over the world spend their whole careers sweating bullets and gulping down blood pressure pills daily in their efforts to come up with items that do what a Message in a Bottle business gift does so well and so simply—delivers business gifts and materials in creative, unique packages that sell not only the product, but the person or people behind the product as well.

So don't waste another minute stressing over just the right business gift or gifts for your special clients and/or prospective customers. Order a boatload of Messages in a Bottle for your business gifts now! Because you're sure to find many more ways to enhance your business with a Message in a Bottle than just the ones I've mentioned.

And you can be sure that your clients and prospective customers will thank you for not making them endure having to open yet another package with someone's bright idea for a cute and clever, but useless and, worse, tasteless business gift. And those thank yous for your Message in a Bottle business gift will likely come, not in so many words, but in so many orders for your products and services that you may have to hire on some additional mates to take care of them all!

Message in a Bottle Article Getting the Date

Getting the Date with a Message in a Bottle

It's always so hard, isn't it?

Getting up the courage to ask someone out on a date.

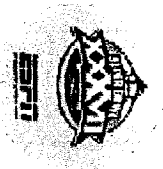

Sure you've made eye contact with them, even chatted with them, but ask them out for a date? Just the thought makes you break into a sweat and want to run, hide in a closet somewhere.

Well, you can relax! Because asking someone for a date just got a lot easier. All you have to do is ask the person you're interested for a date using a Message In A Bottle—and let it take any possible heat.

Or, if you've gotten past the first date hurdle and want another and another and another . . . Well then, use a Message in a Bottle to turn up the heat! Who knows where it all might lead. (Hopefully, to the two of you moving onto to even warmer and warmer things. Like a nice, cool bottle of wine—and a nicer, warm bottle of oil. Ooo-la-la!)

Because, really, who could resist getting asked out for a date when you've shown such a fabulous flair for the unique by doing it with a Message in a Bottle? Doesn't that just automatically tell the person you're asking out that they can expect wonderful, clever things from you? I should think so. And more important, so will they.

And oh, the things you can say! Without ever opening your mouth! The possibilities are as endless as the ocean tides. Truly. Using one of our Message in a Bottle messages to ask out your potential significant other (or potential just-for-this-weekend significant other) makes it so easy and painless that you'll want to smack yourself for not thinking of it sooner. Please don't hit yourself, though. You don't want an ugly bruise marring your looks when you go out on your date.

You can also compose your own special Message in a Bottle date request. What better way could there be to show your want-to-go-out-with-so badly someone what a great imagination you have—or how much you like them?

So, whip up a clever little poem that shows your sense of humor to ask someone out for a date. Or, better, draft an invitation for the romantic night of your, um, I mean, their dreams. You can do it. You watch Oprah, so I know you can.

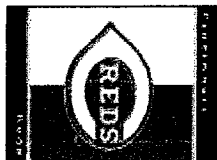

But if you don't think so, you can always borrow from the great poets like Shakespeare to ask someone out for a date in your Message in a Bottle—or you can ask one of your romantic friends who has a creative way with words to help you (just be sure to give credit where credit is due!). Romantic poems are a fabulous way to entice someone to go on a date with you. They're just soooo, well, romantic! And since only a few hard-hearted people who don't know a good thing when they see it can resist a true romantic, you can be pretty darn sure the person you ask out for a date will say yes.

And it's all so easy! Who knew? No more stammering. No more sleepless nights, tossing and turning as you try to get up your nerve to ask someone out. No more calling your best friends at one in the morning, dripping from a cold sweat, trying to find the courage and the right words to ask that special someone out on a date.

No, smart thing that you are, you have gone beyond all that. To, yes, become All That in the asking-a-person-for-a-date arena. Because you have discovered the infinite power and wisdom of using a Message in a Bottle to ask someone for a date! Who knows, Oprah might soon be calling you, clever thing, to ask for dating advice!

Fear

Fear and Message in a Bottle

Oh, fear. Where would we humans be without it? Spiders, death, heights, small rooms – you name it, and someone's probably afraid of it. Of course, some fear is totally logical (even smart) when it keeps us away from dangerous situations; if a fear of walking alone at night gives you a sense of safety, then by all means, pay heed. But if that same fear is taking control of your life, holding you back so far that you barely remember what it is to have fun or be in a loving relationship, then it's time to kiss that fear good-bye.

That's where Message in a Bottle comes in.

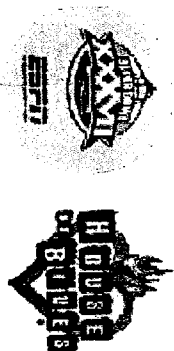

Maybe you're afraid of being alone. Maybe you fear commitment or falling in love. Or maybe you're just so afraid of snakes that you can't fathom going on that family wilderness trip every year, even when your kids beg you to come along. Whatever the case, Message in a Bottle is here to help you bury that fear forever – literally! Using a personalized Message in a Bottle to actually bottle up your fears is the first step to letting them go, permanently.

Here's the plan.

Make a list of your fears – it could be one or one-hundred, whatever has you shaking in your boots – and send them off to the folks at Message in a Bottle. They'll lock each fear into a special bottle (with a beautiful font and paper, at that) and ship them right back to you.

Gather up your fear bottles and dash out to your backyard or the nearest beach. Look each bottled fear straight in the neck, no mercy, and say "I refuse to be afraid." Then bury them deep in the earth or sand, no questions asked. See? Easy as buying a pre-made pie.

But why stop at easy? Turn your fear removal into a full-blown ceremony by getting all of your friends involved! Ask them to bottle up their fears too, and plan a weekend at the beach or out in the serene country. Rent a cabin, a house, even a fancy hotel suite, and pamper yourselves like there's no tomorrow. Early in the morning, share your fears over coffee and donuts. Have each person in attendance open their bottles and talk about each fear, in detail, until they feel they're finally ready to seal it up and let it go. Then, after you're all wired to the gills on caffeine and sugar, bury your bottles together! There's no better way to say good-bye to a lingering fear than with friends...and breakfast pastry.

And don't forget the best part -- planning another one! This fear ceremony is bound to be such a rousing success that you and your friends will be itching to repeat it as soon as possible. I can't imagine a better ideal. How often do you get to cast out nagging fear and have a great reunion with friends all in the same weekend? Not often, I'd bet. So do it yearly, and let Message in a Bottle help you make it an event to remember! Fear, after all, is temporary, but supportive friends are very permanent. Just don't forget the donuts, okay? They really make a world of difference.

Message in a Bottle Article Destination Wedding

Your Destination Wedding with Message in a Bottle

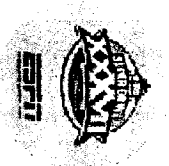

So, you're planning a destination wedding, how incredibly romantic. A destination wedding is certainly up there with the most creative and memorable ways to tie the knot. Picture it: waves crashing against the shore; bouquets of beautiful, exotic flowers; all of your friends and family gathered on a gorgeous beach to celebrate your special day. Destination weddings, however large or small, are definitely chock full of charm.

Why not add to that charm with Message in a Bottle? Message in a Bottle and destination weddings complement each other perfectly, like a bride and groom. Imagine standing on that warm, breezy shore, the sun shining warming your skin as you prepare to recite the most sacred of vows. Then, suddenly noticing a mysterious bottle nearly buried in the sand next to you, bending down to get a closer look after the ceremony, opening it to find a personalized love note from your husband or wife. It doesn't get much more romantic than that. Trust me, the tears will flow.

There are so many ways to include Message in a Bottle in your destination wedding, it's almost unbelievable. Using them as creative wedding invitations tips your guests off to the tropical locale, and it's a great way to get your guests super excited for the trip. You can also use customized Messages in a Bottle as a special greeting once your guests arrive; order a batch for the destination wedding and ask someone at the hotel to slip these little treasures into your guests' rooms. Put them on a pillow next to a piece of chocolate, and you're guaranteed to get lots of extra hugs the next day.

What about using Messages in a Bottle during the ceremony itself? If you're planning to write your own vows, have them tucked inside a Message in a Bottle and open them to read during the ceremony. It'll add a great piece of flair to the destination wedding. Just make sure that you practice this at the rehearsal – you wouldn't want to get stuck trying to open a bottle for hours, would you? Well, maybe. It'd be something hilarious to talk about later.

And let's not forget your destination wedding's reception! Messages in a Bottle are so fantastic at receptions, you can use one in almost every area of the party. Take place cards, for instance. Spice up the typical, boring cards with a Message in a Bottle personalized for every guest! Slip a special message in there to remind them that even though your destination wedding has you running in every direction, talking to everyone, that you value their love and support more than anything. Or what about creating a centerpiece out of Messages in a Bottle? Inside each of the bottles, write an interesting piece of information about the people sitting at the table. Then, when the guests sit down and realize they don't know everyone they're sitting with, they can open the bottles and learn a little something about them – maybe even about themselves! How's that for an ice-breaker?

Don't underestimate the power of Messages in a Bottle as thank-you notes, either. After your destination wedding has come to end, and the gifts have all been opened, sending your guests a thank-you Message in a Bottle will not only let them know that you're thinking about them, it'll remind them of the wonderful time they had at your destination wedding. And maybe they'll even send you a Message in a Bottle in return!

There's no replacing Messages in a Bottle for destination weddings. Use them everywhere, in everything, with everyone. Then just wait – you'll be sure to get lots of "Awww"s and "Where did you find these wonderful bottles?" And what's the point of a destination wedding if you can't be the envy of everyone for just a few hours?

Message in a Bottle Article Bachelorette Party

Bachelorette Party and Message in a Bottle

Let's cut right to the chase: a bachelorette party and Message in a Bottle are made for each other. They're like peanut butter and jelly, milk and cookies, honey and tea. They'd walk down the street holding hands and giving each other some major googly eyes if they could. Just think about it. On one side, we've got the bachelorette party: a bride-to-be plus tons of excited guests locked in a hotel room or staking claim to a bar. Emotions are running high, and the demand for tricks, games and fun is seriously unparalleled. On the other side, we've got Messages in a Bottle, these tiny little treasures spilling over with quirk and charm, ready to be used for just about anything. Message in a Bottle is the perfect bachelorette party accessory. And we're talking about people in the midst of planning a wedding, remember? They've learned to be very picky about accessories.

At the very core of a bachelorette party are games, and Message in a Bottle has that down in spades. Instead of playing plain old Truth or Dare with the bachelorette party guests, why not try the Message in a Bottle version? You'll need three different types of Messages in a Bottle: some customized with probing questions, some with drinking instructions, and some with super-crazy dares. It really doesn't require much more explanation; just start opening the bottles, and let the bachelorette party's fun pour out. Just make sure that each guest keeps her eye on the bottles she opens; half the fun is in taking the bottles home and using them as an instant memory maker!

But memories are made of more than fun and games, so why not let Message in a Bottle play an emotional role in the bachelorette party? Try attaching one to the bride-to-be's gift bag as a special note for her eyes only. It's a cute, offbeat way to express some very sincere emotions. Even the bride-to-be herself can customize Messages in a Bottle for the bachelorette party guests or use them as thank-you notes for a party well planned.

Speaking of planning, are you planning a surprise bachelorette party? Messages in a Bottle can even help you get the bride-to-be to the bachelorette party's location! Customize a series of them with clever clues as to the location and date, and place them strategically a few days before the bachelorette party. The bride-to-be will not only be genuinely surprised by the creative bottles, she'll also be genuinely grateful for such creative friends! All the sneaking around will pay off, believe me.

You can even use Message in a Bottle as a great pre-wedding gift. Ask each bachelorette party guest to bring one Message in a Bottle detailing an intimate act to be completed by the bride on her honeymoon. Wrap them up in gorgeous packaging, but tell the bride-to-be that she can't open them until her wedding night. But don't sign your name to any of the Messages in a Bottle. Tell the bride-to-be that it's up to her to figure out who came up with what.

Really, the possibilities are nearly endless. Message in a Bottle is the bachelorette party's best friend, full of all the creativity and fun needed for such an important night. And remember, Messages in a Bottle can be kept long after the bachelorette party has ended. So when your boyfriend or husband asks how the bachelorette party went the next day, you can pop an aspirin, try to forget your hangover, and hand him a pile of bottles. Let him piece it together for himself.

Message in a Bottle Article Make Great First Impressions

Make Great First Impressions Using a Message in a Bottle

First impressions set the tone for relationships of all types, from business to romantic.

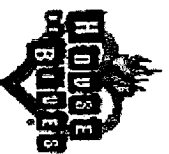

And so you always want to put your best foot forward, as they say, when it comes to making first impressions of any kind. Fortunately, a Message in a Bottle can be a veritable lifeboat when it comes to making great first impressions.

How, you ask. Fair question. And it's really quite simple. Imagine you're finally about to go on a first date with that special someone you've wanted to go out with forever. Instead of calling or emailing them with the details of your date, what if you send them to that person in a Message in a Bottle? Dynamite first impression! Because you've immediately shown that special someone that you're unique, clever, considerate, and oh, so sexy and romantic. Pretty good first impression, huh? And that great first impression is all thanks to a beautiful Message in a Bottle!

Now maybe you have a job interview coming up. You know you're qualified, experienced, and absolutely perfect for the job. However, and this is hard to take, I know, but better to hear the truth from me now, so are all the other two hundred and fifty people who are going after the same position. You want the job so badly your teeth ache, and it's crucial for you to make a good first impression. What's a person to do?

Don't despair. We're here to help. Just go to your interview with a Message in a Bottle tucked in your pocket, purse, or briefcase. What should the message in your Message in a Bottle be? Well, you can place a business card in a Message in a Bottle and leave it with your potential employer so they'll have your contact information handy. And when it's in such a beautiful, unique container, they're certain to keep it close by—which means you'll be remembered.

Also, job hunting etiquette these days has it that a follow up thank you note is not just a nice touch, but it's required after an interview. So instead of some nice, but dull, ordinary card that anyone—and all those other people interviewing for the job—can pick up and then takes several days to get there by snail mail, hand yours to your interviewer immediately after the interview, or leave it with the receptionist to give to your potential employer.

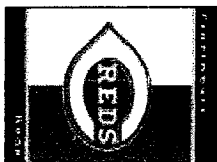

Killer first impression. Guaranteed. Again, by using a Message in a Bottle, you've set yourself apart from the herd—and when you're job hunting in today's economic jungle that's crucial to getting a good job. With one small, simple gesture, you've made a first impression that shows you're considerate, unique, smart, and capable of creative problem solving. Of course, I knew it all along, and I want others to know it too!

And you can use also use a Message in a Bottle to make a fabulous first impression on that new business client or prospective client. Again, you can put your business card in a Message in a Bottle as a leave behind so your contact information is readily accessible. And in such a unique way that you've made a first impression that means you'll be remembered, and better yet, called!

Really, the possibilities for making good first impressions using a Message in a Bottle are endless. So you'll want to order a lot of them. Right now! Because, alas, it's true what they say, you never get a second chance to make a first impression.

Love and a Message in a Bottle

Don't love and a Message in a Bottle just fit together like Fred and Ginger, like Lucy and Ricky, like Brad and Jennifer, well, used to?

A Message in a Bottle and love are just naturally perfect together. What man or woman could resist finding a love poem or love note waiting for them in a Message in a Bottle? No one I know, that's for sure, unless, maybe it's that strange guy holding a Will Work For Food sign at the intersection. But that's another story.

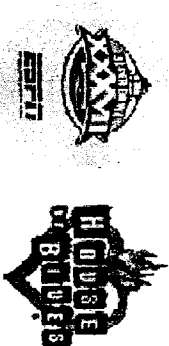

Really, saying I love you with a Message in a Bottle is sooo intimate. Imagine the excitement you'll feel tucking a Message in a Bottle holding your own special love message into your significant other's purse or briefcase for them to find!

Oh, and imagine the excitement that person will feel when they find your Message in a Bottle love note or poem. Talk about appreciation! The person may be so happy and excited that they rush to you and whisk you away for a romantic lunch or dinner—or to the nearest bedroom!

Seriously, it could happen! Taking the time and effort to say I love you in your own special way in a Message in a Bottle shows that you're no slouch in the love department. It shows that you've put more thought, energy, and, more important, care into saying I love you than you could ever do just by buying a card. And that's bound to reap you a lot of, um, rewards. Not that that's why you'd use a Message in a Bottle to say I love you, of course, but, hey, when opportunity knocks . . .

And when it comes to saying I love you with a Message in a Bottle, dare to think out of the bottle! Can you imagine how delighted a special child in your life would feel if you gave them their own personal I love you message tucked in a Message in a Bottle! Just thinking of the smile on that special kid's face is enough to make me need to pull out a tissue.

Because after all, love just isn't for lovers, now is it? And all people, young, old, large, small, and in between need to know and be shown that they're loved. Got a teenager that you're having just a wee bit of trouble communicating with these days? Remind him or her that you still love them and are there for them with a Message in a Bottle. They won't feel pressured or bothered or, worse, uncool—they'll feel loved! They may not tell you that, but take it from me, they'll feel it. And they'll remember it.

And how about that friend who you've known since college and who means so much to you? A Message in a Bottle with a special I love you message in it just for them will mean the world to them. Especially if you do it when they least expect it!

After all, surprising the people you love with a Message in a Bottle love you message is large part of the fun! Anybody can say I love you on a person's birthday or around holidays. But it's just somehow more, er, loving when you say I love you in an unexpected way at an unexpected time.

So you'll want to order a lot of Message in a Bottles. Because you love a lot of people and you want to show them you love them with a Message in a Bottle. But be sneaky about it, okay? Everyone has more fun that way. I promise.

Message in a Bottle Article Got A Crush

Got a Crush? Get a Message in a Bottle!

Oh, the joys and agonies you want to say I got a crush.

And the questions! Do I tell the person? Do I not tell them I got a crush on them? How do I tell them I got a crush? Then, there's the when and where questions. Really, all of that swirling around in your head is enough to give anybody a headache. And a Message in a Bottle is the cure!

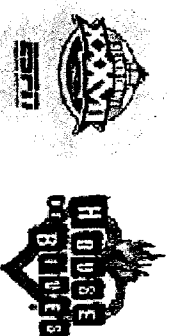

Yes, all you have to do is write your own personal I got a crush on you message and tuck it snugly in a Message in a Bottle. You don't even have to sign it! Then you wait for your chance to slip your anonymous little I got a crush Message in a Bottle onto your crush's desk or backpack or purse or ...

You get the idea. A Message in a Bottle gives you the chance to share your I got a crush feelings without having to fear the results.

Which is silly, really, when you think about it. Because anyone would be thrilled to find someone like you has a crush on them. Why? Because you're smart, creative, and willing to go the extra mile to say I got a crush on you in a very special, inventive way—with a Message in a Bottle. So you're much more likely to get a great big hug—or better, a romantic dinner for two and then a room, well, you can take it from there, I'm sure—when you use a Message in a Bottle to say I got a crush on you.

You didn't realize you were so smart, did you? Well, you are! And that special person you want to say I got a crush on you to will know that as soon as they get their Message in a Bottle—if they didn't know it already.

And you know, as I started thinking about crushes, (and I confess I've had a few, but don't tell anybody, okay? Let's just keep that a secret between us), I started thinking about how a crush doesn't have to just be the romantic kind.

What on earth am I talking about, you're sitting there wondering. And I don't blame you. But think about it. A crush can also mean a fondness for or an appreciation for someone or something they do.

And that takes saying I got a crush on you with a Message in a Bottle to a whole other realm. Why, you could use a Message in a Bottle to tell that receptionist at the office how you (who chooses to remain anonymous) just absolutely love the way she makes coffee. Or that nice mailroom guy who always has a smile and a joke for you when he comes by your cube that you admire his smile and find him outrageously funny. So show them your appreciation with a Message in a Bottle!

Imagine the sparkle it'll bring to their eyes! The bounce it'll put in their step! Because, you know, seriously, everyone could use a little anonymous attention in the form of a special appreciation note in a Message in a Bottle these days. Even if you wouldn't necessarily say I got a crush on you to them, you admire them, don't you?

So become the secret admirer of the masses! Yes! Order lots of Message in a Bottles and show people you admire and appreciate the little things they do, anonymously, of course. Because if there's one thing people like even better than being admired, it's having a secret admirer. You'll have people everywhere crazy about you—and they won't even know it's you! You will be the James Bond of secret admirers, and your personal secret weapon is the Message in a Bottle. Oh, you devil, you!

Oh, and you know, alas, crushes of the romantic kind tend to come and go, so you want to keep several Message in a Bottles on hand at all times. That way, when it happens that you're just dying to tell someone I got a crush on you, you'll always be ready!

Message in a Bottle Article Long Distance Relationships

Message in a Bottle and a Long Distance Relationship

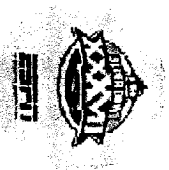

Face it: a long distance relationship is hard work. All that missing and longing, it gets truly tiresome after a while. And really, how many times can you write the same email with the same profound pining? Just like any other romance, a long distance relationship needs spice and kick, it needs a little newness, a shiny new coat – especially if you know you won't see your loved one for a long time. But how do you find that sense of newness when your beloved is so far away?

Look no further than Message in a Bottle. These tiny treasures have all the elements required to add that extra oomph to a long distance relationship, the kind that needs it most. Messages in a Bottle can't get rid of that constant yearning, but they'll definitely kick to the curb any threat of staleness. Cute, creative, charismatic – Message in a Bottle is like life-support for a long distance relationships!

Even the simplest of Messages in a Bottle can kick your long distance relationship up a notch when executed right. Add an extra seal to your Message in a Bottle by covering it in kisses (girls, break out that red lipstick), and let your lover know that this gift was literally sealed with a kiss. Or slather a Message in a Bottle with your perfume or cologne; after all, they say that smell is the most powerful reminder.

Why not get super creative with your Message in a Bottle? First, create a bottle with a super-short message like "If only this bottle were you." Then, on a day when you miss your loved one the most, grab a camera and snap lots of pictures of you and the bottle together. You and the bottle eating dinner. You and the bottle lounging in bed. You and the bottle watching TV. Wrap up the bottle and the pictures, send them off and wait. You'll undoubtedly get an email or phone call from your special someone gushing over how wonderful you are. It's a quirky, cute way to express your long distance relationship longing without resorting to stock phrases or tactics. And maybe, just maybe, you'll get one of these adorable packages yourself!

If you're planning to spice up your long distance relationship with a surprise visit, have we got the plan for you! Before customizing your Message in a Bottle, pick a day for your arrival and book a hotel room for one night (you absolutely won't need it for longer than that). Now, create a Message in a Bottle that gives the hotel's phone number and instructions to ask for you. Drop the bottle in your special someone's mailbox, run to your hotel and wait by the phone. Can you imagine the look on your loved one's face when he or she realizes that you're in town? What a fantastic way to put that long distance relationship on a grinding halt for a few days! And the added element of surprise only makes things all the more perfect. Believe me, you won't be sorry — there's nothing more romantic in a long distance relationship than the ability to actually hug your loved one. Especially when it's totally unexpected.

Message in a Bottle Article Graduation

Message in a Bottle and Graduation

If Christmas is the most wonderful time of the year, then graduation season comes in at a close second. It's definitely the most exciting: dark caps, stogie gowns, spring air tingling with the promise of things yet to come. And let's not forget the graduation parties, the tons of graduation parties packed to the walls with friends, family, hopeful visions of the future... and gifts. We can't leave out the gifts.

So it's a good thing that Message in a Bottle is around to make those graduation gifts and parties as special as humanly possible. Graduation season is, after all, an inherently special time, so why sully it up with dull gifts and predictable parties? The point here to be creative, to capture the vivacious energy of graduation in every single of its aspects, and Message in a Bottle can totally help with that.

Foreplay

Message in a Bottle and Foreplay

Foreplay may very well be the cornerstone of any amazing intimate life. It's sensual, romantic, exciting – and usually the very first thing to go stale after years and years of being together. Sad, isn't it, that such a great thing like foreplay can so quickly feel the heavy burden of routine and monotony. Good thing foreplay and Message in a Bottle go together so well that they're almost like lovers themselves! Sure, there are plenty of ways to spice up foreplay antics all on your own without the often magical help of toys or games, but it's life just that much more interesting with a little bit of creativity thrown in? Of course it is! And Message in a Bottle has sexy creativity in spades. See you later, routine foreplay. Message in a Bottle has something much better in mind.

If you truly want to kick-start a night of sensual, romantic foreplay, why not begin the process first thing in the morning? Create a Message in a Bottle with a suggestive reminder of the evening yet to come and slip it into your lover's purse or briefcase early in the morning, just before he or she leaves for work. But be careful to stash the Message in a Bottle in a place where it won't be found until your lover has left the house; the goal here is to catch them off guard, induce a little blushing. True anticipation is always best seasoned with a dash of surprise and a hint of intrigue.

But don't you dare stop at anticipation. Let Message in a Bottle add some flavor to the foreplay itself! Customize a series of Messages in a Bottle, each one with a coupon for an intimate act – one that's redeemable at any time during your romantic evening. Does your lover have a soft spot for relaxing bubble baths or long, tender massages? Include a coupon for them! Maybe something more risqué is right up your alley – a sensual strip tease, perhaps? Go ahead and add that, too! The only limitation here is your imagination; if it's fun, sensual or romantic, offer it up to your lover in a foreplay Message in a Bottle.

And let's not forget the games; oh no, foreplay games are a Message in a Bottle specialty. Here's one destined to make the evening a memorable one: a series of Messages in a Bottle split into two categories. The first category? Intimate foreplay actions like kissing, massaging or caressing. The second? Body parts, anything that comes to mind: toes, lips, hips, you name it and it's fair game. Carefully arrange these bottles in two beautiful champagne buckets (the champagne is optional, but we strongly recommend it) and take turns with your lover selecting a bottle from each category. The rest of the foreplay game is pretty self-explanatory. Perform the selected act on the selected body part is as sensual and romantic manner as possible. It's a wonderfully exciting foreplay game that can be played over and over again (even if the combinations end up more funny than anything; ever caressed someone's toes?).

And if you're feeling extra risky, try adding a third category to your foreplay Messages in a Bottle: location. Any location around the house will do – kiss your lover's collarbone on the kitchen table, massage his or her feet in the bathtub. Even the most mundane of rooms will inject that extra spice into the game, as if it really needed more. Just think twice before throwing the front yard or back porch into that category; spying neighbors make for surefire foreplay ruinners.

Message in a Bottle Article 48 hour Orgasm

Message in a Bottle and the 48 hour Orgasm

Intimate weekend, romantic getaway, lovers' vacation — call it whatever you want, but there's no denying the power of the 48 hour orgasm, an extra-intimate weekend set aside for you and your special someone. It's a great way to get away from it all, to leave the bothersome stresses of life and focus on the one you love...with a few extra perks, of course. But planning a 48 hour orgasm weekend can be tricky, especially if you want to surprise your lover. You want your clues to be intimate but not too conspicuous, sexy but not overdone. You'll probably need a little help — Message in a Bottle to the rescue! Message in a Bottle is here to set up your 48 hour orgasm weekend in the most creative and intimate way possible. And believe me, a 48 hour orgasm weekend can never be too intimate.

So let's talk clues. You're going to need some good ones if your 48 hour orgasm weekend is going to be the great surprise you're hoping for, and Message in a Bottle can execute this perfectly. Try writing short, to the point messages that give your lover the time and place that he or she is going to be whisked away. You can make these extremely simple, even cryptic, if the mood strikes you right; you could even make each message a puzzle for the recipient to figure out! Start placing these clue bottles in strategic places — the car, the cupboard, anywhere your loved one will look — a week or so before your 48 hour orgasm weekend and watch your lover bubble with curiosity.

If your destination has a specific atmosphere — palm trees, snow, mountains, etc. — use your Messages in a Bottle to reflect that local flavor. Keep the same system of clues mentioned before, but spice it up a little this time. Going to the tropics? Leave a bottle next to some plastic palm trees. Strapping on the skis for a 48 hour orgasm weekend on the slopes (or in the lodge)? Tuck your Message in a Bottle into a pre-formed snowball made of ice shavings! These quirky placement ideas will definitely tip off your lover to the 48 hour orgasm weekend without taking away any of that bubbling curiosity. In fact, they'll probably add to it!

"Well, those ideas are all fine and good," you say. "But what if I'm not trying to surprise my lover? How can I use Message in a Bottle then?" Simple! There are tons of ways to punch up the excitement of your 48 hour orgasm weekend with Message in a Bottle. Add an extra kick to the anticipation by giving your loved one a series of bottles detailing an intimate act that you're looking forward to, and place these around the house a few days beforehand. It's a foolproof way for you both to get shaking with excitement for the 48 hour orgasm weekend. And don't forget to take those bottles with you! They'll be a great sort of "checklist."

And ladies, if you really want to get your guy drooling at your feet, wrap a Message in a Bottle in a piece of gorgeous lingerie with a promise to wear it all weekend. Trust me, there's no way that this will fail. Actually, I wouldn't be surprised if he called off work and whisked you away to the 48 hour orgasm weekend right then! After all this Message in a Bottle flirting, that might not be a bad idea.

Message in a Bottle Article Friendship

Message in a Bottle and Friendship

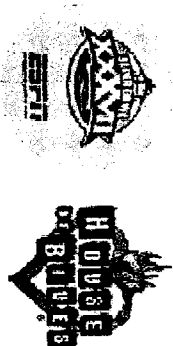

Oh, friendship. Wonderful, cherished friendship – what would we do without it? Great friends get us through our most difficult times, force us to laugh through our tears. They lend us money when we spent our last bit on dinner, buy us endless rounds of drinks after a particularly rough day at work. They make hilarious speeches at our wedding, show up without prompting to our grandmother's funeral and always, always, always have a spare piece of gum. They're parents when we've lost ours, significant others when we don't have them and teachers when we didn't realize we needed teaching. And yet, despite all the efforts, the unspoken unconditional love, we never seem to find the perfect way to say thank you. Sure, we return all their favors, reach out to them in the same way they have for us, but in our hearts it rarely seems like enough. How can we even begin to express out love and respect for our best friends?

Four words: Message in a Bottle.

Message in a Bottle is your best friend when it comes to friendship. What better way to show your devotion than with a customized Message in a Bottle, all wrapped up in gorgeous packaging and personalized with an extra special friendship message? Send one to your friend for absolutely no reason at all, with no provocation or immediate need for a thank-you note. Your friend's heart will definitely swell with a million pounds of love. After all, every day of the week is friendship day.

Message in a Bottle is especially perfect for the long-distance friendship. Got a close friend who recently moved far away? Send a series of Messages in a Bottle showing how much you love and miss them! Find a picture of you in your town (snap one with a disposable camera if you don't have any) and attach it to a Message in a Bottle that says "I may be here...". Now, get a picture of your friend in their town. Don't worry if you can't find one; just draw a little picture of the city and paste on a cut-out picture of your friend. Attach this one to another Message in a Bottle that reads "And you may be here...". Find one more picture, the most important one: an image of you and your friend together. Create a final Message in a Bottle that says "But friendship will always bring us here," plus a short message detailing how much you love them, and attach it to the last photo. See how cute and unique a simple friendship message can be when you include Message in a Bottle?

And while you've got those pictures out, try this friendship Message in a Bottle idea. Gather up a few of your favorite pictures of you and your friend together, pictures that bring to mind a great memory or hilarious event. Create a series of Messages in a Bottle recalling those memories and attach each picture to its corresponding bottle. A trip down memory lane will always bring those friendship hugs to your door – and who knows? Maybe your friend will make an equally amazing friendship Message in a Bottle for you!

Party Games and Message in a Bottle

Who's up for a party? Okay, chips: check. Candy: check. Drinks, candles, pointy hats: Check. Games...wait, darn it! We forgot the party games!

Sometimes in the frenzy of planning a party, whether it's a child's birthday bash or college kegger, we let one of the most important elements slip our minds: party games. And when it comes right down to it, who wants to play the same old party games over and over? Musical chairs and Pin the Tail on the Donkey are a little rusty around the edges, and the Scrabble board is almost always missing a few pieces. So why not add a bit of spiciness to played-out party games with Message in a Bottle?

Kids' party games especially are a snap with Message in a Bottle. Try, for instance, a Message in a Bottle treasure hunt. Use the bottled messages as mysterious clues, and stash them in creative places like the refrigerator, kitchen cabinet, or even buried in the ground (with the neck showing, of course!) The ultimate treasure is up to you, but we suggest a one-of-a-kind coupon (ice cream, pizza, some sort of special trip or toy) tucked neatly into a Message in a Bottle.

Or what about a twist on the classic Easter egg hunt? This party game is bound to please any group of children. Personalize half of your Messages in a Bottle with the names of small prizes and the other half with an inspirational or funny poem. Hide them all over the party area, and let the kids go wild! Whoever finds a Message in a Bottle with a prize name gets to take home that prize, but be careful with this party game. Make sure all the prizes are small and equal in value -- you'll definitely want to avoid hurt feelings and angry parents.

Children aren't the only ones who can enjoy Message in the Bottle party games; there are plenty of ways to add some Message in the Bottle character to teenage or adult games. Remember Spin the Bottle? Why not try a less risque, more emotionally tied version: Spin the Message in a Bottle! Personalize a message for every guest at the party, and mix them up in a box or bag. Choose a bottle (without knowing whose it is, obviously) and spin it. Whomever the bottle points at has to recount a funny story about the person whose name they've spun. If you don't know the person that well, just pay them a gigantic compliment. It's a great way to recount hilarious events and get to know new people. See how much better it can be with the element of surprise?

And for the more tame at heart? A twist on Guess Who! Before the party, ask each guest to write a short statement about another person who will also be attending. Have these statements turned into Messages in a Bottle, read them aloud at the party, and get everyone to guess whom the message is written about -- and who wrote it! Then let everyone take their own messages home as a party favor. This party game is bound to please even the most laid back of guests.

As you can see, it's unbelievably easy to spice up any party with Message in a Bottle party games. It's so easy, in fact, that even a child could do it -- so why not let them? Party games created by kids are sure to be loved by the kids playing them. But keep your eye on the rule system. We wouldn't want one child taking home every single one the prizes you shelled out money for, would we?

Message in a Bottle Article Grieving

Grieving and Message in a Bottle

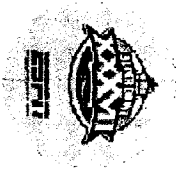

It's an unfortunate fact: we will all spend a portion of our lives grieving for lost loved ones. It's sudden and sharp, the grieving, like a quick rip to the heart. And despite the theories espoused by leaders in the field of psychiatry, the grieving process is mysterious, freezing cold to those in the depths of it. After our loss, we go off in a desperate search for warmth, comfort, something to simultaneously remind us and help us let go. Such a thing very rarely exists in physical form, but there are material guides to cast off the chill. Message in a Bottle is here to help you add some closure to your grieving process; we're here to help you say good-bye.

The ways to say good-bye with Message in a Bottle are abundant. Grieving is a complicated process, full of twists and turns and unexpected emotions; use Message in a Bottle to reflect that complexity. Worried about things left unsaid? Separate regret from the grieving process by letting Message in a Bottle help you say them now. Pen a letter or a poem, even something as short as a few poignant words, and bury the sealed bottle with your loved one. You'll feel a sense of closure, even if that sense is only the start of your grieving. And you don't have to stop these letters after the burial. Create Messages in a Bottle as often as you'd like; bury them in your loved one's favorite spot or place them gently next to the grave marker.

Sometimes a necessary part of grieving is to help others through their grief. Message in a Bottle is wonderful in that capacity. Give special messages to those closest to your lost loved one; let them know that you're there to help them through their grieving. You could even personalize each message to include a special memory involving your loved one and that person. Help them get through their grieving by showing them the happiest moments of your time together.

That same concept can also be applied in the opposite direction. Was your loved one married? Did he or she have children? Give them a Message in a Bottle reflecting your favorite memory of that person, and encourage others to do the same. The family can then begin their grieving by having this wonderful personal log of their loved one as created by a myriad of other people. And if anyone is feeling up to it, you can even open the bottles and read the memories at the funeral or wake.

Because grieving isn't a solitary action, is it? You need not only mountains of personal strength but also the support of those close to you. Get through this difficult time by reminding others that grieving is a system of leaning on one another until you're all able to stand on your own. It takes time, lots of time, and open communication. Let Message in a Bottle be the life-line for your grieving period.

Sports

Sports and a Message in a Bottle

Message in a Bottle is to sports what fine wine is to a seafood dinner: the perfect complement. Seriously, can you imagine a better way to kick up the excitement of a sports game than with Message in a Bottle? Think about it: tons of people crammed in a room to watch the game, all stuffed to the gills with pizza and placing bets on their team coming out ahead. Then the game ends, maybe a few friendly arguments break out, and the fun is over. But with Message in a Bottle, it doesn't have to be. No, far from it — with Message in a Bottle, the end of the sports game is just the beginning of the excitement!

It's easy, really. Here's what you do. Get everyone who's coming over to watch the sports game to customize a Message in a Bottle with their pick for the winning team and their name. That way, no one can switch sides before the sports game is over, making it impossible for anyone to truly lose. Sure, team loyalty is a big thing among sports fans, but when it looks beyond hope, some people will jump ship before you can say "ahoy, matey!" If you really want to make the sports game interesting, slip a dollar bill in each bottle, then divide all the money among the winners.

Of course, you could stop there. Celebrate your sports win, poke a little harmless fun at the losers (or be poked at), collect your dollar bills and go home. But why do that when Message in a Bottle can do so much more? Make the sports after-game full truly a party by upping the excitement ante! Before the big sports game, get to work customizing your own Messages in a Bottle (in addition to your pick for the winning sports team, of course). Create a series of bottles for the winners and a series for the losers. In the winners' bottles, put messages tied to some good or service. Try a message for a thorough car wash or free babysitting; or make one super special bottle with a promise of 10 dollars! Now do the same for the losers' bottles — except make their messages tied to a specific service they have to perform! If you put a free dinner coupon in a winner's Message in a Bottle, make sure that one of the losers' bottles details instructions for purchasing that dinner!

After the sports game, when everyone's won or lost and revealed their secret bet bottles, start uncorking the winners' and losers' bottles. If there are bottles left over, put them all in one pile and let everyone pick until they're all gone. Who knows? Maybe a winner will end up having to buy him or herself a free dinner!

And let's not discount the beauty of Message in a Bottle as invitations for sports parties! If you're planning a Superbowl bash or World Series party, why not let all your friends know by sending them a Message in a Bottle? Create a clever invitation, send it out to all your guests and let them see how amazing Messages in a Bottle are before they bring their own for the sports party game. You could even customize each invitation with instructions to bring something special for the sports party, like chips, salsa or drinks. It's an inventive way to spice up an already pretty spicy event, and it's sure to raise excitement for the sports games — and the little game you've got planned!

Message in a Bottle Article Rekindling the Flame

Rekindling the Flame with a Message in a Bottle

We've all been there. Years into a relationship and it starts to lose its luster. You still adore your significant other, of course, but the pizzazz is gone. The fire. Things are starting to look a little dull, a little gray, and you're chilled to the bone. Rekindling the flame is vital, desperate, yet sometimes it's a fruitless search, one that gets harder by the year. But with Message in a Bottle, that fruit becomes so abundant, you can barely gather it all! Message in a Bottle is the perfect companion to rekindling the flame. You just need a little bit of creativity -- and a whole lot of love.

With love comes love notes, and love notes are the very cornerstone of rekindling the flame - especially when they're completely unexpected! Surprise your special someone by burying a Message in a Bottle customized with your love note (or poem, if you feel daring) deep in a pile of laundry or the bill drawer. Make sure you tuck the bottle away in a place tied to something unpleasant; your loved one will appreciate the Message in a Bottle all the more if he or she finds it while carrying out the daily chores!

Of course, you can hide these bottled treasures in plenty of pleasant places, too. Looking to start rekindling the flame in your intimate lives? Slip a Message in a Bottle under your significant other's pillow, one customized with the memories of your favorite intimate moments together. And don't just stop at one! Do this everyday for a week, and watch the sparks fly.

And let's not underestimate the power of someone else's words. If you and your loved one have a special song, why not print an excerpt of the song lyrics in a Message in a Bottle and place it by the stereo? Try the song that was playing when you first met, or maybe even the song you danced to at your wedding! This is bound to set your loved one's heart aflame. Just make sure you've got a copy of the CD and your dancing shoes nearby; no one said rekindling the flame wouldn't require physical activity.

If you're planning to whisk your special someone away on a romantic vacation, use a Message in a Bottle to unveil your plan! Wrap up a fancy package filled with your plane tickets and an intimate bottled message. There's no time like the present to start rekindling the flame on that romantic trip, and there's no better way to tell your loved one about it than with a wonderful Message in a Bottle package. And don't forget that special gifts are a great way to start rekindling the flame; why not add one to the package, as well?

Rekindling the flame doesn't have to be complicated, though. Honestly, sometimes it only takes the smallest of gestures for the biggest of results. Give your loved one a Message in a Bottle that says, simply, "You've made me the happiest person alive." Set it on the kitchen table, or somewhere else equally as obvious. You could even hand it to him or her, the execution doesn't matter here. Keep it simple, and you'll be overwhelmed with the results. After all, it only really took one glance to get you this far, didn't it?

Mother's Day

Mother's Day and a Message in a Bottle

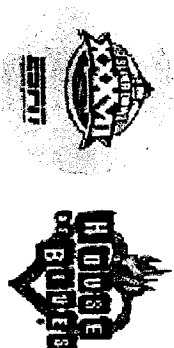

Mother's day is one of those worrisome holidays that we all love to fret about. It's both wonderful and frustrating, full of special memories and weeks spent saying "I'll deal with the Mother's Day gift tomorrow." Every year, we go searching through the back channels of our brain for a brilliant idea to outshine last year's gift, and every year, we end up at that flower shop or card store cursing ourselves for not being just a tad more creative. And all of this is exasperated, of course, by Mom calling everyday to remind you that she doesn't really want anything except a phone call, though you know she secretly does. What in the world is a son or daughter to do?

Get acquainted with Message in a Bottle, the unique little treasures that add a kick to everything they touch. Need to spice up Mother's Day? No problem! Say goodbye to the staleness of traditional gifts with a fresh, new Message in a Bottle perspective. Because really, Mother's Day doesn't have to be groundbreaking, it just has to be heartfelt. And Message in a Bottle has heartfelt down pat.

The first step in the Mother's Day gift process is to customize a Message in a Bottle especially for Mom. You can choose from the tons of pre-written messages offered by Message in a Bottle, but why not create your own personalized message? Try your hand at a special poem or piece of prose; it may not make you a candidate for poet laureate, but even

"roses are red and violets are blue" is sure to make Mom crack a smile. Even just a short note wishing her a happy Mother's Day is bound to do the trick; if it comes from the heart, she'll surely appreciate it.

Now take this ultra special Mother's Day Message in a Bottle and tuck it into a bouquet of Mom's favorite flowers or attach it to a box of deliciously fattening and indulgent candy. Add a gorgeous bow or two, and leave it on her front porch or patio. Sure, you could always just hand her the gift, but everything (even Mother's Day) benefits from a little bit of intrigue. In fact, go ahead and kick up that intrigue quotient by putting directions to a fancy restaurant plus a time to meet you there in the Message in a Bottle! Just make sure to leave the package on Mom's porch early enough to give her ample primping time; moms always want to look perfect for a Mother's Day surprise.

And here's an idea sure to get the tears flowing. Get together your favorite pictures of you and Mom, the ones that remind you of a special day, hilarious incident or fantastic vacation. Now create a series of Messages in a Bottle customized with a wonderful memory from each of those pictures. Attach the pictures to their corresponding bottles, wrap them up in elaborate packaging (hey, too much tulle never hurt anyone) and give it to Mom as a special Mother's Day stroll down memory lane. But clear your calendar for the entire day; if your Mom is anything like mine, that Mother's Day memory walk will quickly turn into a hike that leaves the two of you in a dusty attic with prom dresses and baby clothes.

I am interested in ordering from your company. I saw the "Message in a Bottle" invitations on your website. For some reason, I am having trouble getting to them today. Are you having difficulties with your website? I am interested in the bottles with confetti. What is the total cost for these—if you assemble, with invitation, but we send them out? Please let me know ASAP. Also, let me know the best way to order if I cannot get through on the website. Could you e-mail me the list of all prices?

Thank you,

You are correct. I recommended your site specifically. However, the guys I recommended it to "googled" it or something and got bottlemeamessage.com [lmib@dreamweaverstudios.com] I apologize for my misdirected email. I have not posted any negative messages yet. I will be very specific in my reference to the appropriate website. They bill themselves as the "original message in a bottle shop."

Again, I am sorry. I will continue to recommend your site, I'll just be sure to provide the link to those I make the recommendations to.

Dear Ms. Kramer,

We do not offer free shipping so this cannot be our company. Please let us say that we don't take advantage of any of our customers, especially those serving in our military. Our shipping policy is clearly posted on our website and it applies to all of our customers.

We have heard of some other companies selling imitation products with sound alike names which do promote free shipping. Again this is NOT us! Please have your friends examine any email receipts or the actual imitation product to see who is the source of this fraudulent practice. Please confirm who is actually doing this before posting to any bulletin boards. Our company is messageinabottle.com and we sell the only genuine Message in a Bottle®. Please respond to this email because we cannot stress how upsetting this revelation is.

Thank you for your concern and for looking out for our men and women in uniform.

Comments: After receiving one of your products, I recommended your website to several of my coworkers as a great place to get a Valentine's Day gift.

I work with soldiers who don't have great incomes. Now, three days before Valentine's day, I have heard from several who have fallen victim to what appears to be your very deceptive bait & switch shipping policy.

Advertising free shipping as a part of your service and then charging (at the last minute) more than $25 shipping for an item that is less than $25 itself is bad business. I'm embarrassed to have recommended your site to my friends serving your country. I will no longer do so. I will instead post my complaint on every consumer electronic bulletin board I can find.

ABSTRACT

A novelty mailer for mailing correspondence and parcels by either civil or commercial postal services. The novelty mailer includes a shatterproof thin-wall container, preferably transparent, which has an opening through which both a written message or parcel and decorations may be passed therethrough. The opening is then closable and a mailing label connectable to the outer surface of the container may be addressed and posted for delivery. The decorations are preferably materials which identify a region and may include a decorative label of a region, while the closure means may be a stopper or closable lid. The closure means may also be sealed after being closed in or over the opening to provide visible indicia of unauthorized tampering.

NOVELTY MAILER

BACKGROUND OF THE INVENTION

This invention relates generally to means for mailing and snipping correspondence and parcels, and more particularly to a novelty mailer for accomplishing the same.

Many products are commercially available for mailing correspondence and parcels by either civil or commercial entities. Beyond the conventional cardboard and paper envelopes packaging, applicant is aware of padded bags for enhanced protectability of the contents thereof, along with rigidized container shapes such as tubular packages for conveying rolled paper products and the like.

Additionally, applicant is aware of the mailer for biological specimens as disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 3,819,081 to Runtze comprising a sample receiving inner tube interconnected via end caps an outer protective tube for shipping.

Additionally, applicant is aware of a number of decorative devices for other uses such as in U.S. Pat. No. 2,300,473 to Vanwinkle for an ornamental display/container structure, in U.S. Pat. No. 2,329,375 to Houlihan for a decorative tubing casing for such articles as lipstick holders and other similar cosmetic holders, flashlights and the like and in U.S. Pat. No. 4,457,103 to Alozie for a decorative pottery structure having a glass outer layer, colored sand or silt as a middle layer, and an inner layer of Plaster of Paris.

No other structures known to applicant are available to provide any form of "novelty" mailers for enhanced merchandising of same and/or for providing the unusual mode of conveying greetings and parcels to another by either civil or commercial carriers.

The present invention provides such a novelty-type mailer which is particularly adapted to be available in gift shops and other retail outlets and through mail and parcel carriers to those who may be vacationing in a particular region and/or wish to convey not only a written message or parcel to someone but also wishes to utilize the mode of conveyance as a novelty means of sharing the experience of being in a remote region during travel or vacation or simply utilizing a unique form of expression.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF THE INVENTION

The present invention is directed to a novelty mailer for mailing correspondence and parcels by either civil or commercial postal services. The novelty mailer includes a shatterproof thin-wall container, preferably transparent, which has an opening through which both a written message or parcel and decorations may be passed therethrough into the container. The opening is then closable and a mailing label connectable to the outer surface of the container may be addressed and posted for delivery. The decorations are preferably materials which identify a region and may also include a decorative label of a region, while the closure means may be a stopper or closable lid. The closure means may also be sealed after being closed in or over the opening to provide visible indicia of unauthorized tampering.

It is therefore an object of this invention to provide a novelty mailer which may be utilized to convey messages and parcels via civil and commercial carriers.

It is another object to provide the above invention to include inherent means for expressing and sharing travel experiences of regions of the world.

It is yet another object to provide the above invention having structural features which render the invention acceptable for conveyance by civil and commercial carriers.

It is yet another object to provide the above invention having sealing means for providing visible indicia of unauthorized tampering with the contents thereof.

In accordance with these and other objects which will become apparent hereinafter, the instant invention will now be described with reference to the accompanying drawings in which:

BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF THE DRAWINGS

FIG. 1 is an exploded perspective view of the preferred embodiment of the invention.

FIG. 2 is a front elevational view of FIG. 1 as assembled.

FIG. 3 is a section view in the direction of arrows 3—3 in FIG. 2.

FIG. 4 is a section view in the direction of arrows 4—4 in FIG. 2.

FIG. 5 is a pictorial view of the invention as shown in FIG. 1 being postmarked.

FIG. 6 is a front elevation view of another embodiment of the invention.

FIG. 7 is a perspective view of another embodiment of the invention.

FIG. 8 is an enlarged view in the direction of arrows 8—8 in FIG. 7.

FIG. 9 is an enlarged partial front elevation section view along the centerline of the upper portion of the invention as shown in FIG. 6.

FIG. 10 is a section view in the direction of arrows 10—10 in FIG. 8.

DETAILED DESCRIPTION OF THE INVENTION

Referring now to the drawings and particularly to FIGS. 1-4, the preferred embodiment of the invention is shown generally at 10 and includes a container 12 fabricated of thin-wall transparent shatterproof molded plastic material including a neck portion 14 forming an opening 18 at its distal end. Surrounding the neck portion 14 adjacent the opening 18 is a series of coils 16 of cord added primarily for decorative purposes, but also aiding in gripping the container 12 during closure.

In preparation for mailing or shipping the novelty mailer 10, a written message 26 and/or a small parcel (not shown) is prepared and deposited into the container 12 through opening 18. Also to be deposited in the container (or for merchandising purposes, already contained therein) are a variety of decorative materials 20, 22, and 24 which form the decorative portion of the contents of the novelty mailer 10. In the example shown, the decorative materials are in the form of seaweed 20, fishing line 22 and sand 24 which are indicative of the region of Florida.

After these contents are within the container 12, stopper 28 is inserted into opening 18 securely to prepare the novelty mailer 10 for shipment. In that regard, a mailing label 30 is also provided either ready for connection or already connected to the outer surface of the mailer ready to receive the mailing information desired.

Also contained preferably on the outer surface of the container 12 is a decorative label 32 which serves to enhance the novelty benefits of the mailer 10 and to further define the region from which the mailer 10 is mailed or shipped.

As best seen in FIGS. 3 and 4, the preferred overall shape of the container 12 is somewhat flattened and may also be further contoured to suggest other or previous forms of use of the container 12 prior to mailing. The flattened structural feature is also intended to reduce the overall bulk of the novelty mailer 10 to facilitate shipping.

It is here emphasized that all embodiments of the container forming the novelty mailer are fabricated of thin-wall shatterproof material such as molded plastic to satisfy shippers' package requirements for safety and insurability.

Referring now to FIG. 5, although the decorative label 32 may be positioned inside the container 12, the mailing label 30 must be adhered to the outer surface of the container so that it may be appropriately stamped or posted by marker S to insure and verify payment of shipping costs.

Referring now to FIGS. 6 and 9, another embodiment of the invention is shown generally at 40 and includes container 42 fabricated of thin-walled transparent shatterproof molded plastic material having a neck 44 forming an opening at its distal end into which stopper 52 may be inserted after the decorative contents 20 and 24, along with message 26, are placed therein. As previously described, decorative label 32' having a shape adapted to be adhered to the outer surface of container 42, is also provided, along with mailing label 30' to receive the appropriate mailing information and postage.

As best seen in FIG. 9, in addition to closing the opening of neck 44 with stopper 52, sealing cap 46 is also provided having sealing wire 54 embedded therein which surrounds and clenches the flexible sealing cap 46 to the enlarged distal end of neck 44 as shown. Thereafter, seal 50 is permanently locked in place on sealing wire portion 48 so that visible indicia will be provided whenever the novelty mailer 40 has been opened.

Referring lastly to FIGS. 7, 8 and 10, another embodiment of the invention is shown generally at 60 also including a container 62 fabricated of thin-walled transparent shatterproof molded plastic material and also having neck portion 64 extending to form opening 78 at its distal end. This embodiment 60 also includes hinged cap 66 pivotally connected along shaft 68 to a receiving boss formed in the neck portion 64 as shown. The cap 66 includes compressive sealing sheet 80 disposed at the bottom thereof such that, when cap 66 is pivoted into position over opening 78, the sealing sheet 80 sealingly engages the opening margin 84.

To secure hinged cap 66 in its closed position, locking wire 70, secured within mating cavity 76 formed in lid 66, serves to secure lid 66 in its closed position as follows. Grasping means 72, forming the distal ends of locking wire 70, may be forceably urged together in the direction of the arrows, thus causing side portions 74 to separate. Thereafter, when the lid 66 is rotated about shaft 68 to its closed position, the grasping means 72 are released and side portions 74 innerengage groove 82 formed into neck 64 as shown.

As previously described with respect to FIGS. 6 and 9, grasping means 72 may be sealingly secured apart so that visible indicia will be provided to show that they have been closed together to effect opening of the container.

While the instant invention has been shown and described herein in what is conceived to be the most practical and preferred embodiment, it is recognized that departures may be made therefrom within the scope of the invention, which is therefore not to be limited to the details disclosed herein, but is to be accorded the full scope of the claims so as to embrace any and all equivalent apparatus and articles.

What is claimed is:

1. A novelty mailer comprising:

a relatively thin-wall, substantially transparent, molded plastic, shatterproof container having a generally flattened shape to facilitate mailing;
an opening into the interior of said container disposed at one end thereof;

said opening forming a neck and sized to be relatively small compared to said container, whereby a bottle appearance is achieved;

decorations and a means for transmitting a message located in the interior of said container;

a closure means for releasably closing said opening after decorations and a message have been deposited into said container thus rendering said closed container mailable;

label means connectable onto said container adapted to receive written indicia identifying an addressee.

2. A novelty mailer as set forth in claim 1, wherein: said closure means is a stopper adapted to fit snugly and sealably into said opening.

3. A novelty mailer as set forth in claim 1, wherein: said decorations include materials indicative of a particular region.
